Gov't mulls 9-day work cycle to cut energy costs

By Abigail L. Ho

THE GOVERNMENT is set to adopt a new work schedule to conserve energy after the four-day workweek currently in place expires at the end of the month.

The Department of Energy has proposed a nine-day work cycle that will give government employees two Fridays off each month.

Energy Secretary Raphael Lotilla said Friday the plan could succeed the four-day workweek that national government agencies implemented from April to May this year to generate fuel savings.

"We've already floated the idea of the nine-day work cycle to the Department of Budget and Management and the Civil Service Commission. This should be studied closely as an alternative in case the four-day workweek is no longer feasible after the summer months," Lotilla said.

Under the new scheme, Lotilla said that instead of getting all Fridays off with the four-day workweek, government employees, except those in front-line agencies such as the Bureau of Internal Revenue and Bureau of Customs, would be given the dayoff every other Friday.

Similar to the four-day workweek, the 16 hours that government employees would miss due to their two Fridays off would be spread out over the previous nine working days.

Under the four-day workweek, the eight hours being missed during Fridays are spread out from Monday to Thursday.

Lotilla said the impact of the four-day workweek on productivity and efficiency would likewise be studied at the end of the implementation period to determine whether or not this was a good program.

Palace pushes higher power 'lifeline' rates

MALACAÑANG is keen on granting "lifeline rates" to households consuming more than 100 kilowatts per hour (kWh) to help the masses cope with rising electric rates.

"I have instructed Finance Secretary (Cesar) Purisima, and he is supposed to instruct Energy Secretary (Raphael) Lotilla, to expand the coverage of the lifeline rates. In other words, raise the threshold from 100 kilowatt hours to something higher so more of the poor can benefit from these lifeline rates," President Macapagal-Arroyo said in a briefing in Cebu following the laying of a $68.5-million submarine cable for the Cebu-Leyte interconnection project.

The government gives a 50-percent discount to households that consume 50 kWh or less, 35 percent off to consumers of 70 kWh or less, and a 20 percent discount for users of 100 kWh or less.

The President did not indicate what the new lifeline rates would be.

The expansion of the lifeline rate was pushed after the National Power Corp. was allowed to jack up its rates by an average 47.95-centavo per kWh beginning next month.

Malacañang has described the power rate hike as a bitter pill consumers must swallow to end the government's multibillion-peso subsidies to Napocor.

For big power users, the President said the setting up of the wholesale electricity spot market next year in Luzon by the government was on track.

"It's going to help make prices more competitive because the big users can choose from which power plant to buy," she said. Gil C. Cabacungan Jr.

Bare all, solon urges Corpus

A LAWMAKER yesterday urged Brig. Gen. Victor Corpus (ret.) to bare all in a congressional inquiry being pushed by party-list groups on the alleged overpricing of jeepney engines needed to comply with the Clean Air Act.

Akbayan Rep. Risa Hontiveros-Baraquel said the allegations raised by Corpus against Environment Secretary Michael Defensor should not be allowed to pass without an investigation.

Hontiveros-Baraquel said the inquiry would seek to identify those who would benefit monetarily from promoting the deal.

"Bare all. The Natural Resources Development Corp. must explain to the public why it had opted to approve the purchase of expensive engines if a cheaper deal could be obtained to comply with the emission standards of the Clean Air Act," she said in a statement.

Corpus was alternate ex-officio chair of NRDC until he resigned after discovering that Defensor had allegedly endorsed the deal.

Hontiveros-Baraquel said that since Defensor cut short a press conference on the request of Corpus, the latter should reveal the details of the Engine Replacement Program.

Corpus, however, could not be reached for comment since Friday.

He had claimed the government was forging an engine replacement deal with ATI and its Italian partner, Iveco, that was four times the actual cost. Philip Tubeza and Blanche Rivera

DOJ rules Enrile case vs priest may proceed

By Armand M. Macasa

THE DEPARTMENT of Justice Friday found "probable cause" to proceed with the libel case filed against Fr. Robert Reyes by Gaggayao Rep. Jackie Enrile for saying on television that the latter and his father, Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, were responsible for the death of his nephew.

In a six-page resolution signed by Justice Undersecretary Ernesto Pineda, the DOJ said Reyes' freedom of speech and expression "is not absolute for it cannot be stretched at the expense and honor and reputation of the complainant" Jackie Enrile.

But Reyes, in a telephone interview, cried harassment and blamed Malacañang for re-arranging the five-year-old case DOJ prosecutors had practically ignored.

He said the "timing" of the release of the DOJ resolution was "uncanny."

"They are pursuing clerics critical of the government," Reyes said, referring to the announced plan of Justice Secretary Rod Gozalat to charge Bishop Emeritus Julio Labayen of Iloilo, Quezon; Bishop Diosdado Iniquet of Caceres City and Bishop Antonio Tobias of Noronches City for taking the First Family to justice.

Dubbed the "running priest" for his penchant for running in support of various causes, Reyes is no stranger to controversy.

The case against him grew out of a Nov. 29, 2000, television show in which he accused the two brothers of killing his nephew, Brian Robert Lacas, during martial law.

In the "Extra Extra" television show hosted by Paulo Bedones over QMA 7, Reyes said the killing spurred him to fight for justice.

The younger Enrile, who was watching the show, sued Reyes and Bedones for libel, describing the accusation as "absolutely false" and made with "actual malice."

In his defense, Reyes said the statement was not libelous but was made "in the context of [showing] how the sociopolitical milieu during [during] martial law had marred lives in people."

For his part, Bedones said he was only "reporting" a statement made by Reyes.

The Quezon City prosecutor who was handling the case then agreed with Bedones and dropped him from the complaint. The prosecutor, however, said there was probable to charge Reyes with libel.

Reyes, through his lawyer, filed a petition for review of the resolution.

The DOJ denied Reyes' petition, noting that "during the preliminary investigation, (Reyes) admitted that no case for murder was ever filed against (the Enriles)."

He said he was only quoting newspaper reports tagging the Enriles as the killers of his nephew.

Air fares to rise tomorrow

LOCAL air carriers will be increasing their fares tomorrow due to higher jet fuel prices that comprise about 40 percent of their costs.

Budget carrier Air Philippines Corp. received the go-ahead from the Civil Aeronautics Board on Wednesday to collect a higher fuel surcharge.

Philippine Airlines and low-cost carrier Cebu Air Pacific, which both got the CAB's blessing in the last week of April, agreed to wait for Air Philippines' approval before implementing the new fuel surcharge.

Local airlines will be collecting an additional fuel surcharge of as much as P250 on one-way local flights and up to $6 for one-way overseas flights.

"The fuel surcharge being imposed by the carriers is significantly lower than the actual cost of the fuel increase per passenger. This is because the airlines need to remain competitive in both domestic and international markets," CAB executive director Tomas Mañalac said last week.

Mañalac said the approval was valid from three to six months, after which the airlines would have to submit the fuel surcharges to the CAB for review.

The local carriers cited the increasing price of aviation fuel in their separate petitions. Jet fuel per barrel now costs more than $70 against the average $55 per barrel cost when air fares were last adjusted in November 2004.

The CAB allowed PAL to collect an additional $5 fuel surcharge on one-way trips to the United States, Canada and Australia, and an additional $3 on one-way flights to the Middle East and other destinations.

The flag carrier currently collects a fuel surcharge of $14 on trips to the US, Canada and Australia, $13 on trips to the Middle East, and $11 on all other foreign destinations. Clarissa S. Salido

Alone

One of the most common reasons for divorce is the feeling of being alone. This is not necessarily a physical isolation, but a sense of emotional distance. When a person feels alone, they often feel that their partner does not understand them, and this can lead to a breakdown in the relationship.

Editorial

The first step in understanding the feeling of being alone is to recognize that it is a common experience. Many people feel this way at different points in their lives, and it is important to acknowledge that this feeling is not a sign of weakness or failure. It is a natural part of the human experience, and it can be overcome with the right support and understanding.

One of the most effective ways to overcome the feeling of being alone is to seek out a support system. This can be a group of friends, a family member, or a professional counselor. Having someone to talk to and share your feelings with can make a huge difference in how you feel. Additionally, it is important to focus on self-care and to engage in activities that bring you joy and a sense of purpose.

God's plans

Steve Brown

When I was a child, I often wondered about God's plans for me. I would look at the stars and think about how big the universe was, and how small I was. I would wonder if there was a plan for my life, and if I was meant to be there. These thoughts would often lead to a sense of awe and wonder, and a deep sense of faith in God's plan for my life.

DepEd to rid schools of political patronage

DAGUNO CITY—Frustrated by political interference in education, the Department of Education (DepEd) has authorized parents, teachers and local governments to run community-based government schools this coming school year because they have enough influence to defy politicians.

Education Secretary Florencio Abad told the 5th Philippine Elementary School Principals Congress on Monday that political patronage helped install many teachers in the provinces and have tried to control how school funds are implemented in their communities.

Abad said the educational crisis has become enormous because of inefficient teachers. "We are seeing signs that our educational failures are coming back to haunt us as many of our underachieving graduates come back as underqualified teachers seeking to teach in our schools," he said.

"So much bad thinking and wrong information is doing havoc to our society and we must remind ourselves that all these incompetent Filipinos were students or graduates of our public schools," he added.

Civil service laws make it difficult for government to purge itself of bad teachers, he said, while the huge deficit restricts it from hiring new ones.

President Macapagal-Arroyo has to also address a classroom gap of 51,000 for the year which can only be solved by making schools open two class shifts.

But Cefenno Cawson, acting Baguio schools superintendent, said the deficit forces them to offer teachers overtime pay as credit instead.

The only option left to government, Abad said, is to transform all government schools into "community-based educational institutions that keep on improving the education they deliver."

He said each school governing council is to be manned by parents, teachers, students, local government representatives as well as members of civic groups devoted to improving education.

Abad admitted that the councils could be challenged in court because these are facsimiles of the local school boards created by the 1991 Local Government Code.

But he said Republic Act 9155, the 2001 Governance of Basic Education Act, grants principals and other school officials this level of autonomy.

The councils will help the principals examine their schools' operations, identify new strategies to make education become more accessible to their children, and find new sources of funding to keep their schools afloat. Vincent Cabrera with a report from Donna Demetillo, PDI Northern Luzon Bureau.

Pregnancy journal

Many women in middle America are still unaware of the many benefits of prenatal vitamins. In fact, many women who are pregnant or planning to get pregnant are not taking them. This is a mistake, because prenatal vitamins can help prevent birth defects and other complications during pregnancy.

Prenatal vitamins are a type of multivitamin that contains extra amounts of certain vitamins and minerals that are essential for a healthy pregnancy.

They are usually taken daily, starting before pregnancy and continuing through the first trimester.

Research has shown that women who take prenatal vitamins are less likely to have a baby with a neural tube defect, a type of birth defect that affects the spine and brain. They are also less likely to have a baby with a low birth weight or to experience complications during delivery.
